

Screen Printing

Screen Printing is also known as silk screen printing. The screen is a fine mesh within a frame. The screen is covered with a light-sensitive coating. Light is shone through the film - artwork on to the screen. Where the light shines, the coating solidifies. Where the black image prevents light reaching the screen, the coating remains unchanged and is washed off. The only one place where the ink is able to go through is where the coating was washed off, so the image of the artwork is printed on the product.
